Discoloration is present on areas of buildings where there are no screens as well as where there are screens. Although the State laboratory found traces of screen rust in their very small specimen of paint, they did not report it was impossible for the discoloration to be due to hydrogen sulfide and mercaptans.

Means do exist by which Virginia Fibre can futher reduce odor, in spite of their claim that they "have done all they can". Using their present manufacturing process, they will need to capture and incinerate all gases. A nonfulfur cooking process being used by Owen-Illinois at Big Island is much less malodorous. Incidentally, this process was available prior to Virginia Fibre's construction.

Virginia Fibre's response to citizen complaints has been most disappointing. Efforts have been made by company personnel and others associated with the corporation to discredit complainants. In some cases, their actions have bordered upon libel and character assassination. Incorrect information and statements have been circulated and, when traced to their source, Virginia Fibre employees and associates have been the disseminators. A statistically unreliable study was issued by the company to prove that there is no odor problem. This study interviewed citizens but eliminated all persons who had attended the November 1975 meeting at Amherst and those who had complained about odor. Persons who were interviewed resided, generally, outside the most heavily polluted area. Rather than deal directly with their odor problem, Virginia Fibre has chosen the publicity campaign route. A public relations person has been hired, advertisements have been placed in newspapers and a preacher (employed by the company and a member of their Board of Directors) is flown from Connecticut each week to visit citizens and promote the company's interests.

We know of no one who objects to Virginia Fibre itself - what is objectionable is the odor it produces. Odor complainants are not trying to close the mill and take away jobs from people as has been claimed. The truth is that citizens are only insisting that the odor be corrected, fulfilling the promises Virginia Fibre made so freely when they wanted to come to Riverville. This is essential for the protection of everyone in the counties involved. Should Virginia Fibre expand, Appomattox County, due to prevailing westerly winds, will encounter pollution on a magnified scale unless rigid controls are effected. As residents of Amherst County, many of us sincerely regret the suffering that Virginia Fibre's emissions have imposed upon our neighboring counites.

That a corporation can make promises, become established, claim mistakes, ask forgiveness and never fulfill these promises does not speak well of their corporate accountability.

Corporations, like people, must be accountable and unless they are required to do what they say they will do, our whole state will be inviting its own destruction. Corporate pollution can have far reaching effects, as evidenced by Allied Chemical's Kepone pollution which has affected the fishing industry as well as the Hopewell citizens.

When Virginia Fibre fulfills their original promises - NO ODOR, NO NOISE, and NO POLLUTION OF ANY KIND, all complaints will cease and they will be welcomed as a desirable community member. Companies that live in harmony with their community do not need public relations programs and no public relations experts will be needed. Their own actions serve this purpose. Corporate accountability will have been demonstrated. Today we have the technology to explore the moon and Mars. It is unthinkable that we cannot control the odor from one brand new relatively small plant.

Kitchen Or Minigardens For Vegetables

Elmore P. Jordan
Extension Agent

Home gardeners like to practice their skill during the winter as well as the summer. This may be done by raising foliage or flowering plants indoors. Have you also considered the possibility of producing vegetables in the house? This can be an interesting hobby and will provide a limited harvest of food. A few may be grown as house plants, or in a planter, but do not expect miracles.

Try only about five vegetables such as chive, parsley, pepper, tomato, and radish. Many others have been suggested for the indoor minigarden but are not as well adapted to home conditions as those suggested here.

You will need some pots or buckets six inches in diameter and larger. Use a fertile soil mixture with a high humus content. Provide good drainage with broken crockery and crushed stone or gravel in the bottom of each pot. Chive is a fine crop for the kitchen garden. It grows like small onions with leaves about six inches tall. These plants prefer cool conditions and good light, but will grow quite well on a window sill in the kitchen. One or two pots of chives will provide leaves for seasoning salads and soup. Plant seeds or small bulbs in a six inch pot. The plants should be about one inch apart over the entire surface area. It will require about twelve weeks from the time seeds are planted until leaves can be cut.

Parsley is another good crop for raising in the house. Plant seeds directly into six inch pots, or transplant young healthy plants from the garden. One vigorous plant per pot is enough. Parsley develops attractive, green, curly leaves about six or eight inches tall. It will require about ten or twelve weeks after planting the seeds before leaves can be clipped for garnish.

The Tiny Tim tomato may be raised quite satisfactorily in the home. One plant in a ten inch pot will challenge your gardening ability, and supply some small cherry size fruits which can be eaten whole or served with salad. The Tiny Tim tomato grows to a height of about twelve to fifteen inches.

You may also try the Small Fry which is about three feet tall. The paste type tomato Roma may also be grown indoors. These will need more space than Tiny Tim and should be located on a porch or in a conservatory setting. Some of the small fruited peppers may be grown as house plants. Like tomatoes, they prefer warm conditions and may grow quite well for you. Fruits will be ready to harvest from peppers and tomatoes in about ten weeks after planting. For a quick growing crop try radishes. These will be ready to eat in four weeks. They must be grown very rapidly if they are to be crisp and succulent. Scatter radish seeds on moist soil in a six or eight inch pot. Cover with about one-fourth inch of soil and place a piece of glass over the pot to conserve moisture until the seeds germinate.

Thin young radish plants to about one inch apart. Grow freeze. Radishes will grow very poorly in a warm house (with a poor light.

increase, to date, has been from large volume business mailers, who presort their mail and deposit it at scheduled, non-peak hours in plants preparted to handle it. For example, the Service said it is working closely with shippers of perishable goods to handle millions of gift packages normally moved by other shippers.

As Christmas nears, however, more and more of the mail will be from the general public, deposited at neighborhood post offices, branches and stations, on top of the already unprecedented business mail volume, the Postal Service said.

As a result, the Service said, while priority will be given to letter mail, many postal facilities normally dedicated to letter mail may have to be used to prevent an unmanageable backlog of parcels.

Therefore, the Postal Service said, it strongly urges the public to depositi mail before 3 and their letters and greeting cards by December 10 to assure delivery by Christmas.

It asked that customers mail as early as possible, use proper packaging materials and techniques, and properly address and ZIP Code their mail.

The previous suggested mailing dates had been December 10 for domestic parcels and December 17 for letter mail.

Suggested mailing dates for international mail are unchanged. However, customers were strongly urged by the Postal Service to deposit overseas packages and greetings immediately, and to send them by airmail if they want to assure delivery by Christmas.

OCTOBER'S PARTY

October gave a party
And leaves by hundreds came
Miss Chestnut, Oak and Maple
And leaves by every name.

Miss Sunshine spread the carpet
And everything was grand
Miss Weather led the dancing
Professor Wind the band.

All bounced to that party
Miss Oak in crimson dress
And lovely Miss Maple
In scarlet looked her best.

The party ended at sundown
But everybody stayed
And thus the fun was ended
Autbey announced all around.

When watching the leaves falling from the trees, it brings to my mind these 2 poems.

Gardening By Mail Announced By Extension Office

The rising cost of food is forcing consumers to look elsewhere for nutritional items to buy in order to provide the family wholesome meals. Many families have started family gardens to provide vegetables as a means of helping the budget. You can provide your family with a variety of home grown vegetables from your own back yard spot. The Garden By Mail Program is established to provide something for everyone. For those who consider themselves experts already, information is provided on the latest methods of producing vegetables and what new varities should be grown that proved successful in tests.

The ultimate purpose is to provide information month by month as to what should be done to the families garden during any particular time. The program is concerned with selecting a garden site, soil preparation, selecting what to plant, how to plant, grow and harvest and also how to prepare these products. We will also be concened with second and third crops and also how to store excess produce. There will also be information as to how to prepare the soil humus materials for the following years vegetable gardens. So, if you are interested, call the extension office at 352-8244/352-8245 and ask to be signed up for the Garden By Mail Program. Also, be on the lookout for sign up sheets in the surrounding Community.

76' Mental Health Campaign

The Mental Health Association of Virginia is a citizens volunteer organization, with members dedicated to informing the public about mental illness and mental health, while helping the mentally ill and their families.

As Chairperson of the Mental Health Assoc., and as citizens advocates, the Assoc. works to see that government funds are spent effectively. members would like to see a greater emphasis in State Mental Health dollars go to children and community mental health services.

During December, Bellringer workers will be going house to house to collect for mental health. Each Bellringer will have a name tag and a Bellringer Kit. The Assoc. is not a state agency and exists entirely on private contributions such as funds collected in the Bellringer Drive.

By giving what you can afford, our community can proudly join the forces working to fight Mental Illness with help of the Mental Health Assoc. of Va.

The need is tremendous! One in four families is affected by mental or emotional disturbances.

Children are as prone to emotional problems as adults and one out of ten people are affected by some type of Mental or Emotional problems. An estimated 75% of those who attempt suicide are seriously depressed. Mental illness is America's most costly health problem, in excess of $21 Billion.

The Mental Health Assoc., believes that education is a key factor in preventing mental health problems and offers free literature to the public on such problems. Please join with me and give as generously as possible. Thank you for your support.
